

About

- Works for a company that builds custom computers
- Has been building computers for over 10 years
- is part owner in the company

Reason for using the website

He is browsing through a computer parts website on his iPhone looking for parts that a customer would like in their system and after scrolling down the home page he comes across three boxes that are components, cases, and accessories. once clicked the box will get a bit darker and then load him into the selected page for the products that he selected.